

About me

I discovered my interest in computer science from middle school and in 2001 I started my serious activity by working and studying in this field.

I'm very interested in computer networks, web security, and web programming, and I think a web developer should know a lot knowledge about Server and network infrastructure, and cybersecurity.

And I'm also very interested in learning new knowledge and teamwork.